MEAT MATTER PUT OFF

Uninteresting Meeting Held
For Considering Unfinished Business.

The council met Thursday night
for considering unfinished business and while much discussion of two or three propositions was indulged in, but little was done. The principal matter was the preparation of an ordinance regulating meat inspection. All of the butchers were present and also Mr. S. L. Cowherd, who is willing to construct an abattoir, and Mr. Lee Ellis, who is considering the erection of a cold storage house for the use of the meat men. Progress was reported, but the matter was postponed till another meeting.

The council decided to make a donation to the Baseball Association of an amount equal to the license of the carnival next week.

No action was taken on the application of J. H. West for a permit to erect a frame building on Third and Liberty streets for a livery stable.

Adjacent property owners protested.
An appropriation of $670 was authorized for regrading South Virginia street from Sixteenth to Twenty-first streets. Mr. Sanders, of the Indian Refining Co., and Mr.

Stagg, of the Standard Oil Co. addressed the council on the use of street oils and gave much expert information. They presented sealed proposals to the council, their prices being about the same, ranging from 4 1/2 to 4 3/4 cents per gallon for different grades of oil. Each was given a trial order of one tank for immediate shipment, the oil to be used in the business sections within the next two weeks.

Gee Damage Case Against City Goes Out On Demurrer.

The trial of the embezzlement case against R. H. DeTreville occupied the attention of circuit court most of the week and went to the jury Thursday evening.

Speeches were made by four or five attorneys, Mr. Smith closing for the Commonwealth in a vigorous and eloquent speech, one of his strongest efforts for a year or more.
The jury was hopelessly hung from the first 11 to 1 for conviction and reported yesterday at noon that they could not agree and were discharged. None of the other mill cases will be tried at this term.

Yesterday the case of Jas. Gee's Admr. vs. City of Hopkinsville was argued on demurrer and the demurrer sustained, with leave to amend.
The case grows out of the drowning of James Gee in Little River March 9, 1910.

The case of Ed Weathers vs. Erving C. Stevenson, was dismissed settled at defendants costs.

Case against E. K. Dewey, embezzlement, was continued till June term.

In the case of Commonwealth vs.
E. Moore the death of defendant was suggested and indictment dismissed.

The case of Commonwealth vs.
Hadden and others, appeal from city court, was set for 28th day.
Also case against Sam Frankel, known as automobile case, set for same day.

Houston Morris vs. R. T. Stowe, passed and will be tried later.

Ida Simmons, Foster and others, damage suit against Hopkinsville Sewerage Co., was entered into yesterday. Plaintiffs sue for alleged damages resulting from the location of defendant's septic tank near their property.

Improved Hickory King Corn

My attention was first called to Hickory King
Corn twelve or fifteen years ago.

It was claimed to produce more corn, NOT COBS
AND STALKS, especially on thin land, than any other variety. I had been planting the different varieties grown in this section, Middle Tennessee and North of Ohio River. Each had its serious defects, too much cob, too long maturing or too chaffy, and each had too many nubbins, or ears not filled out. I did not like especially the first crop of Hickory King Corn I raised. The ears were most too small, and not enough stalk.

The next year I crossed it with Huffman, giving it more stalk and longer ears, and still retaining the large, deep grains with a slightly larger cob. Since then I have not planted any other corn on the farm, and have done all I could to prevent its mixing with my neighbor's corn, many of whom plant this variety.

In a test made at the Iowa Experimental College some years ago this corn shelled out most pounds of corn per bushel out of thirty varieties. On account of the small cob, this corn did not sour in the shock in the fall of 1906 during the wet harvest, so there was no trouble about the seed for the 1907 crop, while with almost all other varieties the case was just reversed. I had no trouble getting a stand of 97 per cent without testing seed. Samples of several varieties of corn were sent to the Agricultural Department to be tested. The report showed Hickory King to be one of the most satisfactory they had tested.

Comment by Prof. C. A. Mooers, of the University of Tennessee, after a few years' test with "Boone County White," "Iowa Silver Mine" and fourteen others. (See Bulletin No. 89; July 1910, Page 51.)

"Hickory King is said to have originated in Virginia. At any rate, it is extensively grown in certain counties of that State, and its use is rapidly spreading throughout Tennessee. The ears are small and very thoroughly protected by husks and more than one ear is frequently produced on the stalk. The grains are so large and flat that when once seen they are likely to be remembered. No other variety grown at this Station equals this one in the high percentage of shelled corn—70 pounds of ear corn as grown under average field conditions running with 61 to 63 pounds of shelled corn. None of the other varieties surpass it in soundness, and no other has proven its equal as a grain producer on either poor or medium upland, and its capacity to give high yields even on rich land has been demonstrated more than once.
For example, a block of 16 1-40-acre plots planted at the rate of 10,000 stalks per acre on fertile bottom land at the Station farm averaged in 1909 nearly 90 bushels of shelled corn to the acre. The chief objections urged against it are the hardness of grain and the difficulty with which it is husked. Selection and breeding may overcome these defects as well as increase the yield. Also selections are suggested both for a one-eared variety for grain and for a prolific strain for silage, for which purpose on poor uplands it is even now well suited. Failure to plant thick enough is not an uncommon cause of unsatisfactory yield, especially if ranker-growing and large-eared varieties, which require wide spacing have so to speak, established the rate of planting."

The most prominent seed corn catalogs in the country advertise Hickory King Corn, and price it as high as any variety except their leaders, for which they claim "The earth and the fullness thereof."
Note the description taken from two of the most prominent seedsmen. One out West says: "A white variety of field corn which has the smallest cob of any in existence, of vigorous habits and a splendid and sure cropper, especially well suited to light and thin soil. A very desirable variety and largely planted in many Southern States. It does well in all Northern and Central Western States."

This seems to cover nearly all the corn section.

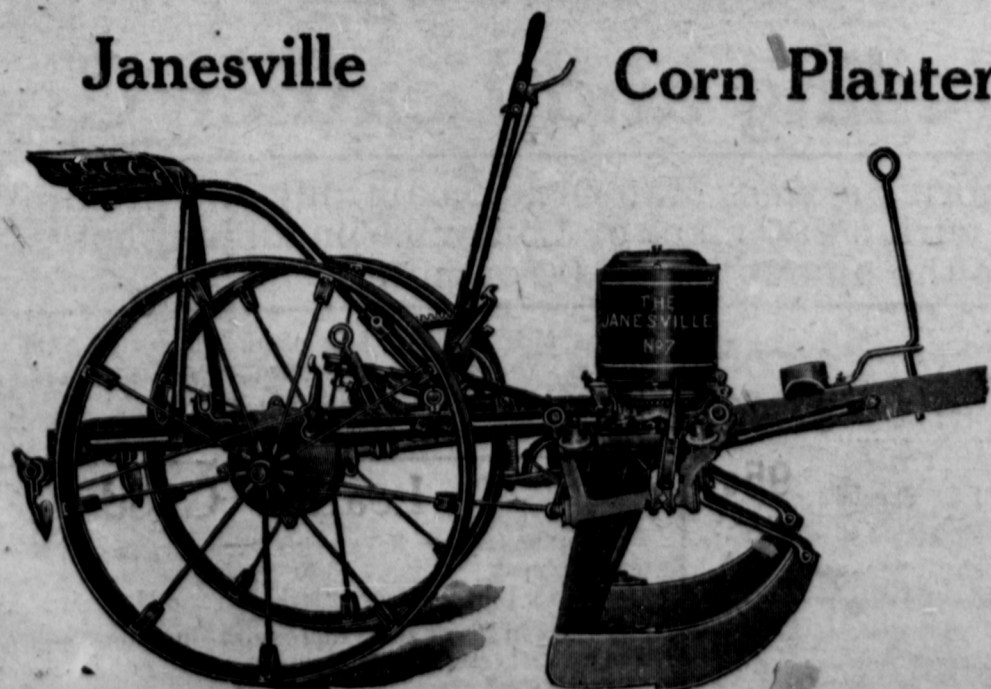

Another local catalogue says. "The ears are rather small, but usually two or three on each stalk.
It is a good yielder. The cobs are small, a single grain sometimes being large enough to cover across section of cob. The grains are very large, flinty, and of the finest quality for milling or feeding."

What else do we want with it? This corn is particularly good for early crops and will give satisfactory results.

These are correct descriptions of the corn. It does not mature so early as some of those Northern and Western "leaders," and hence is not so light and husky. It matures earlier than the old Willis, the most widely known corn here, and will produce more and better corn. I know no corn so easy to get a stand of. Ears that have been on the ground all winter will usually germinate satisfactorily. It will stand more exposure than will "Willis" and is as satisfactory for meal and feed as any corn grown anywhere. The one objection to it is, it shells too easily.

I can furnish this Improved Hickory King Corn, such as I plant, at $2.00 per bushel.

Brashear and His Young Wife Made Their First Telescope.

JOHN A. BRASHEAR, of Pittsburgh

Whose instruments of precision have made possible many important discoveries in physics and astronomy.

(From the article on John Brashear, the Great Instrument Maker, by Edwin Tenney Brewster, in McClure's Magazine for April.)

The fact that the Brashears had no money to buy a telescope was no permanent obstacle—they went to work to make one instead. They set up a little shop, with a tiny engine and a lathe. Together they made the tubes and ground the lenses, husband and wife working side by side, she hardly less deft than he. Every evening, after his ten-hour grind at the rolling-mill was over, John Brashear hurried up the hill to his home up on the South side, to find his shop in order, the engine cleaned and oiled, with steam up, ready for the evening's work. First came a wash up, with very careful attention to his hands and nails, for lens-grinding is delicate work and some particle of dust or grime from the mills might have fallen on the polisher and ruined the glass. He used even resolutely to wash his hair every night, no matter how tired he was, to avoid any risk of this kind. Then, supper over, he ground and polished and tested till midnight, till one, till two o'clock in the morning; then a hurried tumble into bed, a few hours' sleep, and up, when the five o'clock whistle blew, for another day's toil at the mill, and another happy evening in the little shop.

Three years they spent on their first five-inch glass. When it was nearly done, Brashear, then a man past thirty, wrapped the precious object in a red bandanna handkerchief, and carried it across the river and up the hill to the Allegheny Observatory, to get the advice of Langley, who was then director, as to the final corrections to be made upon the glass. When at last the telescope was done, he and his wife set it up in the attic of their little house, and, having cut a hole in the roof, invited their friends and neighbors in to have a look at the planet Saturn.

ALSO MEDICAL SUPPLIES

Beardless Conquerors Of Night Riders Meet
In Capital.

Washington, March 22.—Supplies for three new companies of Militia and an entire brigade medical equipment were secured for Kentucky from the War department by Col. E. B. Bassett, acting Adjutant General, before he left for Frankfort. Col. Bassett completed the arrangements which he came here to make, and when the three companies are mustered in the supplies will be ready and the brigade will be complete.

"The action of the War Department is a great thing for Kentucky," said Col. Bassett. "It means that the brigade will certainly be completed at once and will be ready to take the field at any time required. It means that Kentucky will be in the forefront of the national militia, as she should be."

"Two of the companies for which supplies have been secured are now being recruited in Louisville. The supplies consist of uniforms, kits, guns, and ammunition, while the brigade medical equipment supplies an important want. The cost of the supplies to the Government is about $30,000."

Col. Bassett, after a conference with Gov. Willson at Frankfort, will give out the names of the three militia officers who are to go to Texas with the first detachment. As each regiment in the State Guard is to contribute an officer, Louisville is certain to be represented.

Two Colonels Meet.

The two ranking officers of the Eastern and Western Kentucky militia during the night rider disorders of two years ago met in a Washington hotel. They are Col. E. B. Bassett, Acting Adjutant General of Kentucky, and Col. E. H. Lillard, Secretary of Senator Bradley. They didn't expect to see each other, and the surprise and gratification seemed mutual.

While Bassett, then a Major, and Brig. Gen. Roger Williams were cleaning up Trigg and Lyon counties in the West, Lillard a Lieutenant Colonel was in command in the Burley district.

At the meeting Col. Lillard reoffered his services to Col. Bassett should the war clouds on the horizon grow threatening. He had previously offered his services to Gov. Willson.

Bystanders refused to believe that two real Kentucky Colonels should possess neither mustache nor goatee between them.

RELIGION OF THE SWORD

Merit of Fighting for the Faith Surpassed Every Other With Followers of Mohammed.

After the Hejira the merit of fighting with the sword for the Eman, or faith, surpassed every other merit. A drop of blood shed in the cause of Allah would be of more avail than two months of fasting and prayer. To be slain in battle meant all sins were immediately forgiven; the most awful wretch in his earthly life being at once wafted up to paradise, there to enjoy in the arms of the dark-eyed houris an eternal sensual felicity.

Mohammed's constant sanction for everything that he said or did was a direct message from Allah, sent by the Archangel Gabriel. If the question arose whether or not a plundering expedition would be undertaken; in what way the booty was to be divided; whether a whole tribe was to be put to death, or even whether a new wife was to be added to his harem (they finally amounted to 18), the Angel Gabriel was close at hand to give the inspired words.

MUSEUM OF SPEECH.

One of the latest ideas in Paris is the establishment of a vocal library, already being installed in the Bibliotheque Nationale, which is to consist of a collection of graphophone records of words spoken or sung by great orators, singers and actors. The library will be equipped with abundant instruments for transmission of the recorded sounds to the ears of visitors. Thus in the future the student of the life of some great man, intending, perhaps, to become his biographer, may receive aid by the accents of his voice long after he has passed away. The new department will be called the Museum of Speech.

More than forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood-purifier and invigorating tonic for the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone root and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherrybark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and through them, the whole system. Thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed.

GIVING THEM A TREAT

"Billy," said the little bride to her young husband, "Emily and Maude are coming to lunch today. I want to give them a treat—a home luncheon. They'll be glad of anything given them—though they used to fuss a lot at what they got to eat at the boarding house."

"They're regular kickers, my dear," declared Billy. "You are wasting your time on them."

"For shame, Billy! You know how glad we were to be invited out when we lived there after we were married. I'm going to take pity on them and let them see how cozy our home is. I'm going to give them the simplest things, well cooked, so they won't go back and say that I'm extravagant."

Then she hurried into the kitchen to give a few final directions to her little maid.

"Bertha, be sure to take the plates from the left and be very careful not to spill anything. Mix the salad at the last moment so the apples won't change color and don't—don't let the creamed cabbage burn. It burns so easily. I know my guests will enjoy everything, as I boarded where they do the first six weeks after I was married, and I got very tired of it. There's the bell—I'll go."

"I'm so glad to see you, girls," she was saying a moment later. "Put your hats here on the bed."

"What a perfectly lovely flat," said Maude. "It's so sweet of you to ask us to a home meal!"

"We're going to have you to dinner at the boarding house, only it seems a shame to ask you away from a place like this," said Emily.

"I'd love to come some time," declared the hostess. "One gets tired of planning meals, though I do take a pride in my simple menus."

"I suppose it is a pleasure to think out the meals," said Maude. "You can at least have a change. Take it from me, dear, that cabbage in some form or other for 365 days in each year palls on one's appetite, disguise it as you will."

"I—I think it's nice creamed," stammered the hostess.

"Not if you had it as often as we do at the boarding house. Cabbage is as much a part of our lives there as gossip is. By the way, they say that Mrs. Softus has gone to her mother's."

"Excuse me a minute. I—I think there is something burning."

The hostess hurried into the kitchen to make a change in her menu. A minute later Bertha started for the nearest store.

"Isn't everything all right?" asked Maude. "Isn't that your maid running down the street?"

"I sent her on an errand. I hope you and Emily brought good appetites."

"You were a darling to ask us to lunch," said Emily. "A change from boarding house fare will do us lots of good. I'm as hungry as a wolf!"

"So am I," chimed in Maude. "I could just eat anything."

"Except apples!" exclaimed Emily. "I think our landlady has bought a carload and wants to get rid of them. Apple sauce to the right of us, apple pie to the left of us, salad and fried in front of us—"

"Excuse me a minute. I'll have to go to the kitchen."

"Something burning again?"

The hostess returned soon somewhat flushed. Then Bertha was seen hurrying down the street again.

"It must be nice to have the stores so near," said Maude, glancing at the clock. "But you mustn't go to any trouble for us."

"No, indeed," declared Emily. "We like everything. I thought I smelled tomatoes—I just love them—if they are not spoiled with sweetening."

"Excuse me; I will see how near dinner is ready."

"Mrs. Cary is terribly uneasy about this lunch," said Maude to Emily. "I don't believe Mr. Cary allows her to entertain much. I hate a stingy man, don't you? They say they are awfully economical. If she makes another journey to that kitchen I shall starve. Anyhow, we'll have some good home made food!"

"I think she ought to keep a slate in the kitchen and make a note of things from the grocery," said Emily. "She'll lose that maid—sending her out so often."

The luncheon of cold boiled ham, canned corn and other products of the nearest store was received in disappointed silence by Mrs. Cary's guests. In fact, it passed off so badly that Mrs. Cary could hardly wait for her guests to go so that she might have a good cry. During the ischymal flood Billy entered.

"My luncheon was a failure. They wouldn't eat anything. I had to make a new menu and—Bertha has given notice. Please, Billy, let's go to boarding. No one appreciates—"

"Is this what they wouldn't have?" demanded Billy, surveying the dinner. "It looks great to little Willie. Um! Creamed cabbage, apple salad, tomatoes and—say, you must have been a chef in some previous existence. Boarding, indeed! The trouble is those girls have the kicking habit—a boarding house disease, my dear. We'll not take any more chances of catching it."

"You really like these things?" asked Billy's wife, cheering up. "Then I'm glad the girls didn't want them. I think home is best, too. Those horrid girls can just go to a restaurant next time they want a change of fare, can't they, Billy?"

CURRENT COMMENT

CREAM OF NEWS COMPILED AND COLLECTED FROM ALL SOURCES

In a drunken brawl at a celebration of peace in Honduras, two generals were killed and 25 others killed or wounded.

It is announced that Sheehan is to be withdrawn as the senatorial nominee in New York because he cannot get the entire Democratic vote, and that another nomination will be made. On two occasions Kentucky Democrats have suffered a Republican to be elected Senator, rather than withdraw a nominee objectionable to a minority holding the balance of power. Chastened by many years of defeat, the New York Democrats appear to have gained wisdom in the school of experience.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

PRICES MAY SOAR

Fire May Put New Tax on Housewife's Purse.

Prices of brooms are likely to soar skyward as a result of the fire in Charleston, Ill., which is said to have destroyed almost the entire available supply of broom corn in the United States.

Charleston is the center of the broom corn industry in this country, and it is from that point that most broom factories in the United States get their raw material. The crop of broom corn is gathered very early in the spring, and then is stored until the green corn has dried. A large portion of this year's crop was stored in the warehouses which were burned in Charleston, according to dispatches from there.

There is said to be a real probability that Cairo will get into the Kitty League. All that is necessary is to raise $2,000 and the subscriptions are being made rapidly. A park will have to be secured.

The old players, Yon, Lyons, Brown and Taylor, to whom contracts were sent, are dissatisfied with wages and the Moguls will be a new team entirely unless they sign very soon.

A Helpless Invalid

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is, it would almost seem, to blame for her own wretchedness. Read what this woman says:

Richmond, Mo. — "When my second daughter was eighteen months old I was pronounced a hopeless invalid by specialists. I had a consultation of doctors and they said I had a severe case of ulceration. I was in bed for ten weeks, had sinking spells, and was pronounced to be in a dangerous condition. My father insisted that we try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought me six bottles. I soon began to improve, and before it had all been taken I was as well and strong as ever, — my friends hardly recognized me so great was the change." — Mrs. Woodson Branstetter, Richmond, Mo.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what another woman says:—

Jonesboro, Texas. — "I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for myself and daughter, and consider it unequalled for all female diseases. I would not be without it for anything. I wish every mother in America could be persuaded to use it as there would be less suffering among our sex then. I am always glad to speak a word of praise for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and you are at liberty to use this testimonial." — Mrs. James T. Lawrence, Jonesboro, Texas.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice — it is free and always helpful.

of a general Parcel Post would be to the best interest of the nation.

Affirmative—John W. Venable.

Negative—Joe McCarroll.

The question was freely discussed by all members present.

H. W. Linton made an address on several legal points.

S. T. Fruit was elected to membership in the club. Mr. Fruit is a young attorney at the local bar.

9th St. Christian Church.

Services will be held to-morrow as follows:

Bible School at 9:30 a. m.

The Lord's supper and preaching at 10:45 a. m.

Preaching and song service at 7:30 p. m. All are heartily invited to these services. The Pastor will preach at both preaching services.

Mrs. Foster will lead the song services and Miss Moore will be at the organ.

A Winning Game
By Harold Strong Latham
(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

The silence was unbroken save for the crackling of the logs in the open fireplace; the flames threw fascinating lights and shadows upon the faces of those who were sitting before the shrine pondering upon the mysteries of the fire—and other things.

In the late fall and winter Molly's hearth was the favorite meeting place of more than one couple, who, though nothing had been said, were, as the neighbors would say, "going together." That nothing had been said to Molly, the little circle of friends were certain, though of late they had noted and discussed Ralph Osborne's persistent attention to her and Molly's evident pleasure in it.

"Let's play rignarole. It's jolly fun," Molly suggested when she began to feel that though watching wood burn was all very well for a time, her guests might like to do something more exciting.

"What's rignarole?" big Tom Carroll, from next door, put in.

"It's a game," Molly replied absently and then caught herself abruptly. "Of course you knew that. How stupid! Let's see, there are six of us, that's fine! Well, one of us starts a story—makes it up, you know—and when it gets to the most exciting or mysterious part stops and passes it on to the next one, who must work out the situation as best he can and lead up to a new one and pass that one. So it goes. Do you all see?"

"Yes," came a chorus of replies. "Ralph shall start," Molly went on, "and it'll come to you and I you," in listing each of the separate victims, "and finally come to me. Then Ralph must finish. The beginner always ends the tale," she said.

Again there was silence, while Ralph collected his thoughts.

"Well, here goes," he began, after a time. "My story, like all stories, begins with a 'once upon a time.' Once upon a time there were a man and a maid. His name was—was Peter, and hers was—Sue. Now, Peter loved Sue, but like the Peter of the nursery rhyme, he was afraid he 'couldn't keep her.' For Sue had everything—a fine home, automobiles, carriages, maids—whereas Peter had only a pumpkin shell! Peter was not lazy, or shiftless, or stupid, but he'd reached only the pumpkin shell period.

"One day Peter, who could really stand it no longer, resolved that he would place his offerings at Sue's feet and learn his fate. He rang the bell that evening at her door, was admitted by the ceremonious butler and finally ushered into the library, where he found Mo—Sue. They sat down before a blazing log fire, much like this one, and after they had talked of this thing and that, Peter told her of his love and asked her the one all-important question. But unfortunately just as he finished speaking, and before Sue could possibly reply, her mother came into the room and said—"

"There," Ralph declared. "I'm finished. Go on." He looked cautiously up at Molly, but her head was turned away. No one, not even he, had noticed the startled expression on her face or her alert attitude.

"Sue's mother came in," the next victim continued, "and said that there was a man outside who insisted on seeing Peter at once. Peter was very angry, but of course he couldn't show it before the woman whose daughter he hoped to marry. Consequently he hurried out and found the owner of his 'pumpkin shell,' who told him that unless he paid the rent that night he was going to dispossess him. Now Peter sometimes had money, but this evening he had none. So he got his hat and coat and went with the man, never saying a word to Sue, who, of course, was much surprised at his abrupt exit.

"After thinking it over Peter finally decided that he would borrow some money from Frank Chambers, one of his friends. Accordingly, with the landlord in tow, he sought Frank's home. When no one answered his knock he tried the door. Finding that it was not locked he opened it. And the strangest sight met his eyes. In the center of the room he saw—"

"Ha, ha!" the narrator laughed gleefully. "What did he see?" nudging his neighbor.

"He saw—he saw a white elephant. Standing supremely alone in the room which had formerly been occupied by his comrade was this rare beast of the jungle. In open-mouthed astonishment Peter gazed at the animal, and then, turning, fled from the building, the landlord in hot pursuit. In his haste Peter had neglected to shut the door and the white elephant was following him, too. Up hill and down they ran, this curious procession, until they found themselves approaching the zoo. As they came up to it, Peter noticed that they were creating wild excitement among the attendants, who rushed forth in great numbers with the director at their head. As he came up to the panting Peter, he exclaimed:

"Oh, I simply can't take it," expostulated the next person. "It's absolutely out of the question. How do I know what he said?"

"Let me go on," the fifth one put in eagerly. He said, "Where did you get that white elephant?" "Found him," Peter replied.

"The director looked at him in amazement, and then took him by the shoulders and led him off. All night they kept Peter and the landlord there, giving them two little sleeping rooms in one of the buildings. Early the next day they were brought into a large assembly room where they found many men gathered together. They put Peter on a platform and the director went to the front of it and said:

"Go on, Molly. It's up to you now."

Molly sat bolt upright. "Well," she declared, "I must say you've got me into a pretty mess. Let me think."

"And said," she went on, after a minute, "Gentlemen, as you all know, the prize of the zoo, the only living white elephant in captivity, has been missing for ten days. Through the extreme diligence, bravery and I may say skill, of this gentleman, indicating Peter, the elephant once more adorns our zoo. I have called this special meeting to present to Mr. Peter Pumpkin the reward of $10,000 offered for his return."

"Before Peter could realize what had happened the money was pressed into his hands. As soon as he could, he got away from the grateful crowd, paid the landlord, even buying from him the 'pumpkin shell,' and hurried back to Sue, whom he found much upset by his disappearance. When he had explained it all to her, however, she forgave him, and—and—when he repeated his all-important question she accepted him—and—and—that's all I know."

Molly looked up in confusion, to find empty chairs. One by one, unnoticed by her, her friends had gone, with the conscious feeling that they were intruding and overhearing something not meant for them. That is, they had all gone but Ralph.

Molly looked at him reproachfully.

"How dared you?" she asked. "It succeeded," he answered, coming over to her, "and I simply couldn't wait."

"You've got to finish the story. That's the rule of the game. The beginner always finishes."

"May I?" he asked.

Who Was There That You Knew?

IN the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps we can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction, of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographers in the United States of that day; they were bought by the United States Government for $30,000; they were buried in the War Department for 50 years—they are buried there still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knocked from pillar to post for nearly 50 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector, J. Pierpont Morgan, tried to secure the collection—Ex-President Garfield and General Benjamin F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the REVIEW OF REVIEWS, the entire collection has been gathered into 10 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the one accurate, impartial history of the Civil War for the camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of little-known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

REFRIGERATOR FOR COUNTRY TEMPERATURE ONCE UNIFORM

Scheme for Keeping Things Cool in the Well When Ice is Not Procurable.

A country place is not always situated where ice can be procured during the summer months and a substitute refrigerator must be provided. A resident of a country place devised a cooling apparatus which he placed in his well. The device consisted of a box about one foot square made of boards having a length to reach almost to the water level and to extend about four feet above the platform of the well. A short box containing several shelves is made to slip easily into the long one similar to a dumb waiter. This smaller box is lowered and raised with an old-fashioned windlass. The smaller box containing the shelves is filled with things to be kept cool.—Popular Mechanics.

HINTS FOR THE HOSTESS

Attractive Way to Serve Banana Ice Cream—How to Combine Apricots With Curacao.

Banana ice cream has quite a festive appearance when served in sherbet glasses and decorated with frosted slices of bananas and preserved cherries, which should be stoned and entirely freed from superfluous juice. To frost the bananas, dip the slices into a thin white icing similar to a cake frosting. The slices should be merely glazed and not heavily coated. If it is inconvenient to frost the bananas the slices may be used plain.

Snowballs of ice cream are very attractive when served with snowballs of cake on a wintry night when real snow is flying out of doors. To prepare the cake, cut out rounds of white lady cake, free it from crust and dip it into cocoanut frosting. If a little cocoanut is sprinkled over the ice cream balls the two will look so much alike that one can hardly tell the difference.

A famous chef served apricots with Curacao. Remove the juice from a pint can of apricots. Add a table spoonful of sugar and the rind of an orange to the juice. Let it boil ten minutes; then remove the rind. Still in two tablespoonfuls of Curacao and pour it over the fruit. Serve when cold.

A few spoonfuls of Curacao add a delicate flavor to sliced and sugared oranges. Almond flavoring is very nice with boiled dumplings and batter puddings in which cherries or peaches are used. Do not, however, have more than a suggestion of this flavor.

Cleaning Bagdad Rugs.
 It is very difficult to wash a Bagdad couch cover or rug successfully. The colors are almost sure to run when treated in the ordinary way. Before beginning operations separate the strips. Then wash each one in a separate water. Use white soap and lukewarm water to which a little salt has been added after a suds has been raised by brisk stirring. Do not rub the strips on a washboard, but merely dip them into the water and stir them briskly, then quickly rinse them and hang them over a clothes horse in the kitchen away from the sunlight. Be careful when drying that the strips do not overlap. When almost dry press out the wrinkles with a hot iron. If the middle strips have become slightly worn exchange them with those on the outside, when sewing the cover together again.

Glazed Fruits and Nuts.
 Boil without stirring for 10 or 11 minutes one pound granulated sugar and one-half cup water. Test in water and when brittle remove from fire, add one tablespoon lemon juice and set the pan containing the candy in a bowl of hot water. With a long pin or needle immerse section of oranges, grapes, figs, almonds, walnuts or pecans and set upon oiled papers. The fruit or nuts must be thoroughly dry before dipping into candy.

Boiling Hint.

When boiling rice or beans two things which will boil over, put in a lump of butter size of a walnut and this will stop the trouble at once.

Early Condition of the Globe That Accounts for Deposits of Coal Near South Pole.

As a general statement, it may be said that the sun's rays heat the earth and that the earth heats the air, but the extent to which this goes will depend much on the clearness of the atmosphere. The clearer this is the more the rays of the sun will pass through it without losing their heat. Obviously, the cloudier or thicker the air the more the sun rays will be absorbed.

Conversely, on the brightest nights the earth will lose the most heat from radiation, and, becoming colder than the atmosphere, moisture from this will be deposited in the form of dew.

In the younger days of the earth, when the seas were boiling hot, and perhaps for millions of years afterward while they were gradually growing cooler, there must have been an atmosphere so surcharged with steam as to prevent completely the passage inward of any heat rays, or outward radiation. As a necessary consequence of these conditions there is supposed to have been one uniformly hot temperature all over the earth, there being no difference between what are now the tropics and the arctic regions.

When the temperature had fallen sufficiently to allow the development of the gigantic ferns that were to form our coal deposits, things grew as luxuriously in what we now call the temperate and arctic zones as at the equator. Consequently, there was nothing very surprising at the discovery of a vast deposit of coal by Lieutenant Shackleton not far distant from the south pole.

RECIPROCITY.

Nephew—Aunt Fuss, you're always borrowing trouble.
 Aunt—Well, I always pay it back, don't I?

SONS OF FAMOUS FATHER.

Discovery of the grave of Walter Landor Dickens in a Calcutta cemetery is a reminder of how the sons of the great novelist were dispersed. This soldier son died in India; another, Sydney Smith, entered the navy and at twenty was buried at sea; a third, Francis Jeffrey, joined the Canadian northwest mounted police, and two others—Alfred Tennyson and Edward Bulwer Lytton—settled in Australia. A. T. Dickens recently returned from the antipodes and has been touring England with an interesting lecture on his famous father. E. B. L. Dickens died in Sydney at fifty-one, after representing Wilcannia in the New South Wales parliament for six years. Charles and Henry Fielding remained in their native England. H. F. Dickens, K. C., is still in that country.

WHICH ARE THEY?

Mrs. Buffington, who is frequently heard to expatiate upon the advantages she has derived from knowing two or three foreign languages, was descending in the elevator the other day with her two children and the French maid—who, by the way, speaks English fluently—when she discovered that she had forgotten something.

"Marie," said she to the maid, "I must return to the apartment," and then, as with sudden inspiration, she added, "Attendez vous au door!"

SWORD OF BRITISH OFFICER.

The war office is said to be contemplating the provision of a new sword for cavalry officers, which is to resemble the weapon now carried by troopers. Instead of the slightly curved blade, intended for cutting as well as thrusting, they are to be given a light, straight bladed weapon, intended solely for thrusting.—Westminster Gazette.

LONG LEASE

Big Coal Deal Closed In Christian County This Week.

The most important coal deal ever made in Christian county was filed for record in the Christian county clerk's office last Thursday evening, by the TERRY COAL & COKE COMPANY of this city, embracing a TWENTY YEARS lease contract, with Mr. Brent Hart, a prominent coal operator of Madisonville, Ky., the main features of the contract being that Mr. Hart takes immediate charge of the TERRY COAL & COKE COMPANY mines and property at Mannington, in the Northern end of the county, under contract to operate the mines for twenty years, on a royalty basis, the minimum output per annum being fixed as fifty thousand tons of coal, over and above the amount of coal he is to furnish the stockholders of the company each year at the regular stockholders' price of coal.

The royalties to be paid monthly, and deposited with the Planters Bank and Trust Company of this city, as trustee.

We are informed that this deal is a culmination of a sale contract, which has been pending with eastern people for several months, a majority of the stockholders of the company, urging the lease contract in place of the sale, so that the stockholders, a large majority of whom are farmers and business men of Christian county, can secure their coal each year, for TWENTY YEARS TO COME at the original low price to the stockholders.

The TERRY COAL & COKE COMPANY property is known to be one of the best coal properties in the state, and the coal of the most excellent quality.

Mr. Hart is highly recommended as a coal operator, we understand has the financial backing to handle the mines successfully, and connections by which he will have a ready market, for all the coal he can produce, and the royalties from his output, which he expects to increase each year, should soon pay the stockholders a good dividend.

Don't follow your bent so far that you will go broke.
